A PREFACE
(Without Apologies)

Francis Melville Lewis, the 3rd of 9 sons born to the Reverend Charles Ferris Lewis of Norwalk, Ohio, and Maria Edwards Kiloh Lewis, was the first to research "in depth" and chronicle the Lewis family with which this genealogy is concerned. Copies of his work, which he titled "The Lewis Direct Lineage", have been owned and read by many members of the family living today. This record left by Melville seems to establish two important points:

(1). Nothing seems to be known of the ancestors of the first Lewis in this lineage, John I who came to America in 1634 and was born in Bossenden-in-Blean, Kent, England. According to a document sent to my father, Archibald Heber Lewis, many years ago by "Media Research" of Washington, D. C., our Lewis's are descendants of Welsh princes through the family, Llewelyn, some of whom migrated to England before the 14th century, - our John Lewis I of Bossenden-in-Blean, among many others, being one of their descendants.

(2). The Reverend Charles Ferris Lewis of the 7th generation in America seems to be the only male descendant of the aforesaid John Lewis I in the entire lineage to leave male descendants of his own, now living and bearing the Lewis name. (See below).

These points obviously have simplified the task of compiling this genealogy, and the writer has not attempted to research them further, being content to leave such matters open to inquiry by others. One avenue of inquiry that immediately suggests itself derives from the record that John Lewis I had a brother, George Lewis, who came to America about the same time and settled in Barnstable, Mass., on Cape Cod, where his descendants, for better or worse, infested that area. One of these may have been a certain Lorenzo Lewis of recent times, the meanest man in town, stories about whom are legion. It is said when a neighbor shingling his barn happened to put the base of his ladder about 6 inches over on Lewis's land, Lewis knocked it down and left the poor chap stranded on the roof. Another time, a Mr. Jones, newly come to town with a large family of big strong boys, cut a great quantity of wood in his wood lot. The envious Lorenzo Lewis, not liking newcomers in general and the Jones's in particular, set fire to a few cords of Jones's wood. The fire spread and burned down Jones's house and barn, resulting in the Jones's leaving town, never to return. My source of this information says Lorenzo had a hatred of boys, often driving them off the road in front of his house with a cattle whip, and enjoying like endearing actions. I am told there are excellent records in Barnstable where one can uncover skeletons and other pleasantries in and out of the closet, if one is inclined to research of this sort. However, as my source says, "Sometimes Genealogy can go too far". But I digress from the direct line of John Lewis I. To return:

Credit is given here to Francis Melville Lewis for his valuable record which I have used almost verbatum in covering the first 7 generations of our Lewis's in America, and also for his providing basic information concerning his own, the 8th generation. The writer started in where Melville left off, and with the helpful assistance of nearly all living heads of the Lewis line, is happy to present the completed record of 12 generations of descendants of our first American ancestor, John Lewis of Bossenden-in-Blean.

This is solely a Lewis genealogy. Time permitting, a Kiloh genealogy may follow. If not, others may feel free to pick up that thread from here. For those related to my mother, Bessie Hastings Williams (Lewis), I hope sometime to complete the up-dating of existing Hastings and Williams genealogies, already published.

A word about the mechanics of reading this record: It will be noted each name is associated with three numbers, such as (1-1-1) John Lewis I of Bossenden-in-Blean, or (8-3-29) Francis Melville Lewis. The first of the 3 numbers (to the left) indicates the generation a person belongs to, and is called the generation number. It applies only to generations in America since John Lewis I whose generation number is also (1). Melville belonged to the 8th generation. The second number, or family group number, indicates the order of birth of the person by his parents. Hence John I was the first and oldest child in the family, Melville was the 3rd oldest of his parent's children. The last figure, or index number, indicates the numerical sequence that the individual occupies by order of birth in the entire Lewis lineage, starting with John Lewis I as (1). Hence Melville Lewis is the 29th member of this lineage in America. Spouses of direct Lewis descendants are given the same numbers as their mates, with the addition of H or W to the index number to designate Husband or Wife as the case may be. Where spouses have been acquired by 2nd, 3rd, etc. marriages, these letters are repeated to correspond with the number of the marriage. Generally there is one genealogical sheet per married couple, or more if the story part requires it. Unmarried persons are only shown in the list of children on their parent's sheet, plus a story about them, if available, in the case of adults.

At present there are living only 5 known male direct descendants from John I bearing the Lewis name in the 11th generation, and none in the 12th. Those in the 11th generation are, in order of birth: Stanley Knowlton Lewis III., (11-1-119); Mattson Doniphan Lewis, (11-1-131); Micheal William Lewis, (11-1-141); Walter Herbert Lewis, (11-3-148); and Gregory Hastings Lewis, (11-1-178). Scott Gelhaar Lewis (12-1-135) enjoys the interesting distinction of deriving his last name from another Lewis family, but is related to our Lewis's through his mother and the Colburn line.

The writer is especially grateful to Winifred Kiloh Lewis Stewart, Margaret Lewis Atwood, Edith Mattson Lewis, Florence Colburn Gelhaar, Annette Lewis Lawson, Roberta Klein Strabler, and Stanley Knowlton Lewis I, for facts and leads which proved fruitful in completing the record. I also acknowledge the encouragement and patience of my wife, Marjorie Rich Lewis, and help from my brother, Gilbert Hastings Lewis I, and my sister, Frances Kiloh Lewis Bergquist, as well as appreciation for the contributions from all the others whose names space does not permit listing here. Special thanks are also extended to my nephews, Winfield Hevenor Lewis and William Kiloh Lewis, for their timely aid in duplicating some of the copy for distribution to family members.

I ask the usual pardon for any errors of omission or commission found herein, and I will be glad to have notice of any observed. In closing I also ask for the charitable consideration of all who may have felt my prodding into their affairs in furtherance of this effort to be an unmitigated nuisance.

History says that John Lewis, ancestor of the Lewis Family, having his place of residence in Plymouth and Scituate, Mass., came from the County of Kent, England.. "The men of Kent" were celebrated in England's annals as men of courtly manners, gallantry and loyalty, of which the Lewis forbears were witnesses. John Lewis was born about 1595 in Bossenden-in-Blean (meaning Bossen's den, or dale, or vale, in the Blean Woods of the 12Th century). Blean is found on the modern maps, about five miles northwest of Canterbury, County of Kent, England. About the year 1630 John Lewis removed to Tenterden, County of Kent, but a few miles from Blean. Tenterden is located within two miles of the coast of the English Channel. It is a market town. Therein contained is the ancient St. Mildred Church, which has a lofty tower built of stones intended for the sea wall. During the reign of Queen Mary, 1550, a penitentiary within the rear of this old edifice imprisoned heretics. John Lewis was the vicar of Tenterden, possibly of Old St. Mildred. He may have been vicar of the Borough of Tenterden, for he was contemporaneous with Nathaniel Tilden, who was mayor. These two men emigrated to America on the same ship at the same time. This fact lends to the belief that John Lewis was the vicar of the Borough of Tenterden. Nothing is known of the ancestors of John Lewis.

"List of Emigrants to America", by Hotten, records that John Lewis, with his wife, Sarah, and their son, John, Jr., were on the passenger list of "such persons as embarked themselves in the good ship Hercules (200 tons; John Witherly, master); to be therein transported to the plantation called New England in America," from the port of Sandwich, England, in March, 1634. All passengers had certificates from the ministers where they last dwelt, "of their conversations, and conforming to the orders and discipline of the church,", and had taken the oath of allegiance and supremacy". In the party was Nathaniel Tilden, aforementioned, and who settled in Scituate, Mass. He was the forbear of the Hon. Samuel J. Tilden who in 1876 was a candidate for president of the United States.

The ship Hercules arrived in Plymouth, Mass., in March, 1634, fourteen years after the arrival of the Pilgrim Fathers. In due course, John Lewis was dismissed from the church of Plymouth "in case he join a body at Scituate, Mass." In 1635 he had a house lot in Scituate, in Kent Street, "the fourth south of the driftway" (cow path). This lot was apportioned to him in the first division of land in Scituate. He assisted in laying out the town plat of Scituate, and in 1637 was offically recorded as a freeman. In 1648 John Lewis removed to New London, Conn., being one of the first settlers, as New London was founded in 1646. Here he died Dec. 8, 1676. There is no record of the death of his wife, Sarah.

John Lewis II, son of John Lewis I and Sarah Lewis of the first generation, was born in Tenterden, County of Kent, England. The date is estimated as 1632 as he was a very young child when his parents arrived in America in 1634, first in Plymouth and moving to Scituate, Mass., in 1635. In 1648 he moved with his parents to New London, Conn., two years after the founding of that town, and he was one of the early settlers. Here he became interested in the construction of buildings, a carpenter contractor. Two years after his arrival, and in 1650, he witnessed the erection of the "old mill", which in 1923 was still kept in its original shape. The original name of New London was Naumpag, and during the families' residence in 1658 the name was changed to New London. During the Indian wars in the year 1700 John Lewis II was a sergeant with the Colonial Army, being in charge of transportation bands. On May 7, 1717, he was killed by a falling tree. It is said that John Lewis in 1667 was summoned before the New London County Court and presented by the grand jury "for absenting himself at unreasonable hours of the night, to the great grief of his parents"; again, "John Lewis and Sarah Chapman presented for sitting together on the Lord's Day, under an apple tree, in Goodman Chapman's orchard." Sic semper homo sapiens!

Saffell, in his "Record of the Revolutionary War" (New York: Pudney & Russell, publishers, 79 John St.: 1858, p. 152) in giving names, rank and dates of commissions of the officers of Colonel William Douglas' Connecticut Regiment, raised by the state, 1776, to join a Continental Army in New York, states that Captain John Lewis was on June 20, 1776, (then but 19 years old) commissioned a captain and was attached to the staff of Colonel Douglas. F. B. Heitman in "Historical Register of the Continental Army," (Congressional Library, Washington, D.    Died

Samuel Brooker Lewis, Esq., second son of Captain John Lewis and Mary Lewis of the fifth generation was born in South Salem, now Lewisboro, Westchester County, New York, January 15, 1790; died in Norwalk, Huron County, Ohio, July 14, 1870. He was twice married. His first wife was Amy, daughter of Nathan and Abiah Ferris. She was born in Newtown, Fairfield County, Connecticut, November 14, 1792; died in Norwalk, Ohio, October 5, 1856. His second wife was widow Almira Hurlbert, to whom he was married October 19, 1859, in Norwalk by Reverend Allen Darrow, minister of the Baptist Church.

In February, 1814, Samuel Brooker Lewis with his wife Amy went from South Salem, New York, to Newtown, Connecticut, the home of Mrs. Lewis's parents, where on February 18, 1814, was born their first child, Angeline, I. Early in the spring of 1814 Mr. Lewis, alone, went west by way of Buffalo, New York, which the British had burned, and while there he had the privilege of an interview with General Scott, the commanding American officer. The British navy of Lake Erie had been destroyed by Commander Oliver Hazzard Perry at Put-in-Bay the previous September 10, 1813. This was near the locality in which Mr. Lewis settled, now known as Norwalk, Huron County, Ohio. He was the third pioneer settler there, Abijah Comstock and Benjamin Newcomb preceding him by only two years. Mr. Lewis purchased 200 acres of land on the State Road, one mile south of Norwalk at $1.25 an acre, sold it for $5 an acre; then bought 200 acres on the State Road midway between the Medina and Wooster roads. Here was his home for fifty years. The first summer he planted corn and potatoes and sowed wheat; in the fall he returned to Newtown, Connecticut.

On February 15, 1815, Mr. Lewis with his wife and infant child, with a covered wagon, drawn by a span of horses, began the return trip of 700 miles through the dimly tracked wilderness to Norwalk, which journey consumed forty-six days. The wagon trail was through New York City to Morristown, New Jersey; to Easton, Harrisburg (crossing the Susquehanna River on ice), to Pittsburg, Pa.; thence to Canfield, Cleveland, Huron and Milan, reaching Norwalk in the afternoon of April 8, 1815; or rather they arrived at their new home in the dense forest on that day, for Norwalk was yet to be; only an Indian trail marked the crest of the sand ridge where Main street now is (in 1923). The first morning, Mr. Lewis shouldered his gun and going into the woods shot a wild turkey, thus providing the first breakfast for his family. During the summer and fall a clearing was made and the log cabin build on the east side of the State Road at the highest point on the farm; this was replaced in 1840 by a large frame house, now in 1923, used as part of the barn for the farm. The garden and fields were cleared and crops planted.

The nearest neighbor was two miles distant, but usually the Indians were friendly in their visits. On one occasion, however, when none were home but Mrs. Lewis and Angeline I, two Indian squaws made off with the young child, but were frightened to give it up to the frantic mother, who screaming, pursued them a full mile. For weeks, through the untracked forest Mr. Lewis with William Marshall surveyed much of Huron County, laying out farms and highways. He relates that in 1815 to 1820 provisions were scarce and prices high: wheat and oats $2 per bushel; a common axe cost $5. At one time he was compelled to go to Mansfield, Ohio, when short of flour, and brought it home on horseback. A few years later he had occasion to return to the East and walked the entire distance.

In the Lewis log house, in the spring of 1817, was formed a township organization, just after which was held here the first township election, and in 1818 the election of state officers. While the settlers were coming in, his house was always open and free of charge to them. In 1815 there were but six personal property tax payers in all Norwalk township, Mr. Lewis's tax being 90 cents.

In his memoirs, Mr. Lewis says: "In 1819 I set out the first apple orchard in Norwalk from a nursery I planted in the spring of 1815 with seed laid up by my wife in South Salem, New York in the year previous to coming to Ohio." He was industrious, energetic, optimistic; farming was his principal business. He built and operated a sawmill on his farm many years, and gave much time to the public roads, building schoolhouses and churches. At other times he rendered public service; received his first commission April 24, 1820, as justice of the peace from Governor Brown, serving several years; many years was township trustee, assessor and census taker. All duties were discharged with fidelity. On May 18, 1819, he was one of a jury of twelve that convicted of first degree murder a young Indian, Negosheek: the trial was held in the old courthouse, now (1923) Odd Fellows Hall. Negosheek, with another Indian, was hung July 1st. It was feared the Indians would retaliate and for some time the homes of the juorors were kept barricaded and guarded. Mr. Lewis assisted in locating and establishing the value of the right of way of the Baltimore & Ohio Railway between Newark and Sandusky. And yet, he never sought publicity or office. He was a great hunter: in 1827 wild turkeys came by the thousands and threatened to ruin the crops. He trapped hundreds.

Samuel Brooker Lewis was a man of strong convictions; opposed to secret societies, believing the church sufficient. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis were charter members of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, organized in Norwalk on January 20, 1821. Their eldest children (Charles Ferris, Angeline 2 and Betsy Ann) were baptized into that church February 11, 1822 by the Reverend Roger Searle, the first rector, the parents being sponsors. On April 4, 1825, Mr. Lewis was elected a vestryman. C. E. Newman, many years clerk of St. Paul's, says in the "Firelands Pioneer", Vol. XII, Sept. 1876, page 59: "I mention the names of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis among the honored fathers and mothers who were active and earnestlaborers during the earliest years of St. Paul's Church, whom I hold in grateful remembrance." Mr. Lewis was a member of the Firelands Historical Society, Norwalk, from it inception in 1857. His name frequently occurs in its early records. The official magazine, "The Firelands Pioneer" contains a four-page memoir written by Mr. Lewis at the age of 68 years (Vol. I, No. 1, page 32, June, 1858), in closing says: "These reflections though pleasing, are to some degree mingled with sadness to me, for the past presents the fact that nearly all my former friends and acquaintances have passed away, and among those numbered with the dead is Mrs. Lewis, my own loved companion."

Upon the decease of his first wife, Amy (Ferris) Lewis, in 1856, Mr. Lewis rented his farm and lived with one of his daughters, Mrs. Betsy Ann (Lewis) Mead, nearby on the same State Road. In 1858 he built a smaller house near his original homestead, into which he moved in the fall of 1859 when married the second time, and died there July 14, 1870. His son-in-law, Joel E. Mead died August 15, 1870; another son-in-law, Orlando F. Curtis, died August 19, 1870. An unusual coincident that the heads of three families living on the same road with their farms almost touching one another, and so closely related, should pass away in the space of about a month.

The Lewis Family burial lot is located near the entrance to the burial ground of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Norwalk, Ohio. It is immediately back of the old frame original church building. The markers are tall marble slabs. The first bears this inscription: "In memory of Samuel B. Lewis, Esq., died July 14, 1870 in the 81st year of his age; native of South Salem, N.Y.; I know that my Redeemer liveth." The second, this: "Amy, wife of Samuel B. Lewis, Esq.; her native place was Newtown, Connecticut; died October 5, 1856 aged 63 years, 10 months, 21 days.". Next is the tombstone of a daughter Margaret; then markers of the father and mother of Mrs. Lewis, which read: "In memory of Nathan Ferris; died Sept. 6, 1830, aged 81 years." "In memory of Abiah, wife of Nathan Ferris; died July 12, 1837, aged 81 years."

REV. CHARLES FERRIS LEWIS, second child and eldest son of Samuel Brooker Lewis and Amy Ferris Lewis, was born in a log cabin on his father's farm two miles southeast of Norwalk, Huron County, Ohio. He was the second white child born in that township. Baptised February 11, 1822, by the Rev. Roger Searle, in St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Norwalk; with him were baptised two sisters, Angeline 2, and Betsy Ann, their parents being sponsors. In 1837 he entered Kenyon Episcopal College, Gambier, Ohio, and for a time was college associate of Rutherford B. Hayes, who was later president of the United States. In 1843 Mr. Lewis received the degree of A. B.; 1846 the degree of A. M., and graduated from the Theological Seminary (Bexley Hall) of Kenyon College. In August, 1846, was ordained deacon in St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Delaware, Ohio; fall and winter of 1846-47 in charge of the united parishes of Boardman and Canfield, Mahoning County, Ohio; spring of 1847 in charge of a parish near Macon, Tenn.; in 1848 administered St. John's Episcopal College, Cincinnati, Ohio; winter of 1849 to January 1851, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church, Monroe, Michigan. Married Maria Edwards Kiloh in 1849, who participated with him in his work at Monroe and elsewhere thereafter. They conducted a young ladies boarding school, 1851, Yellow Springs, O.; 1852-3-4, Springfield, O.; 1855, Hamilton, O.; 1856-7-8- professor of mathematics in Miami University, Germantown, O.; 1859-60, rector St. John's Episcopal Church, Worthington, O.; and superintended the affairs of the preparatory department in Worthington, of Kenyon College of Gambier; fall of 1860 rector of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, Milan, Erie County, O.; with St. John's Episcopal Church, Wakeman, O., as a mission; summer of 1861 to 1868 rector St. John's, Wakeman, Huron County, o., with mission at Collins Station; from 1868 until midwinter of 1873 in charge of missionary work in Newtown, Stamford, and Tariffville, Connecticut, and Kane and Smethport, Pennsylvania. In January 1873 he was fatally injured by overturning of a sleigh while journeying to one of his charges in the Pennsylvania mountains. After a long struggle for life he died September 4, 1874 in Wakeman, Ohio. Although the missionary activities of the Rev. Lewis no doubt required frequent change of location, he had a sensitive and restless spirit that contributed to the frequency of the family's moves and on several occasions as noted in the memoirs of Mrs. Lewis prevented them from remaining in a location where they had every reason to expect their enterprise to prosper and enable them to enjoy the fruits of their labors.

"When I was born", Mr. Lewis writes, "no opportunity was afforded of being drawn in a little carriage, of lying upon or creeping over carpeted floors; no cradle in which my pioneer mother could place her pioneer infant and sing a lullaby. Growing to young manhood, I rolledlogs in a tow gown, with hands and face as black as an African; now (1861) I am privileged to wear the clerical gown, and instead of ministering to logs in the field, to minister to fellow mortals in the church". He obtained the education possible in the district school, but longing for a broader field of culture, walked to Gambier, 80 miles, to enter Kenyon College. He tutored fellow students, and in other ways financed himself through college. He was never strong. His slight figure was a handicap difficult to overcome, yet he won honors for the good he did. In Wakeman, he was a postmaster in 1862-3-4, and also conducted a select school. He was a student, teacher in all uplifting things - - a fine speaker, entering into every civic activity having to do with humanity. He was especially successful in rejuvenating depleted parishes and his work in St. John's Church, Wakeman, is an event of history. He was active in building up the Firelands Historical Association, Norwalk, O., was a life member and his name is found in its proceedings. "The Firelands Pioneer" official organ of this association, Vol.II, No. 4, Sept., 1861, page 13, contains a stirring address given by him.

It is interesting to note that during the twenty-five years of the married life of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis were born their nine sons, all of whom, with one exception, lived to manhood and became heads of households. This is the only branch of the Lewis Family in the eighth generation to extend or perpetuate the name of Lewis in this direct lineage from John Lewis of Bossenden-in-Blean, Kent, England, 1595.

MARIA EDWARDS KILOH LEWIS, wife of Rev. Charles Ferris Lewis, and eldest daughter of John Kiloh and Maria Ann Edwards (Kiloh), was born in Aberdeen, Scotland. The family came to America when she was 12 years old (1840) and settled first in Cincinnati, Ohio. Her father John Kiloh came alone several months before his family; they followed, crossing the stormy Atlantic in six weeks in the sailing ship Lawson. Life in those days was not an easy affair, and after her marriage to the Rev. Charles Lewis it was a continuous struggle against hard poverty to keep her family of boys intact and growing to healthy manhood. Suffice it to say here that she succeeded admirably, and lived to the age of 82 years in full possession of all her faculties. She was an accomplished musician, spoke French fluently, and taught voice, piano, and the harp in many of the classes she conducted to help earn a living for her family. She had a basically cheerful nature and deep religious dedication that sustained her and her boys throughout their lives. What better measure of life's achievements than this!

For more details concerning the early life and Scotch ancestry of Maria Edwards Kiloh Lewis, her life in England, the Atlantic crossing, her schooling in America, her parents' devotion, her sisters, her marriage and birth of children, the churches and schools she helped organize and function with her husband, the family life after his untimely death, the marriages of her sons and the births of their children she has chronicled in her memoirs and are worth reading.

JOHN KILOH LEWIS was the oldest of nine sons born to the Rev. Charles Ferris Lewis and Maria Edwards Kiloh (Lewis). In his early youth he was a great help to his parents, especially his mother, doing chores and caring for the younger boys as they came along, and later earning some money toward his keep. He learned the art of telegraphy and for many years was employed by the railroads as a telegrapher at various stations in western Ohio. He married Julia Foote of Amherst, Ohio, who was his faithful wife and who bore him two children, John Rex Lewis (usually referred to as Rex) and Helen Foote Lewis. Strangely the record does not contain much more about the family than this. They moved to Cleveland in the 1880's and John Kiloh Lewis was variously employed, first in the hardware business, then back at his old trade of telegraphy. In the 1890's he and his next younger brother Charles went into business together as successors of Kennedy, De Foust, Parsons & Co. (nature of business not stated), but it was the time of a sad financial depression all over the country, and like hundreds of others they failed to meet their obligations and lost everything. John finally bought a milk route and did very well in it but it was too hard a life. There is some evidence that the hardships of his early life told on his health at this later period and he had to be careful what he did. Toward the end of his life he seems to have been operating a neighborhood bakery store in Cleveland. Nothing more is known at this writing regarding the family, except that in 1917 Rex was taken to the Grace Hospital in Cleveland for an operation. The hospital still exists and may have a record that would reveal more facts about Rex, but efforts to obtain any such data, if it exists, from the hospital have been unsuccessful to date. John Kiloh Lewis was named after his maternal grandfather, John Kiloh, who was born in Scotland and came to America in 1838.

CHARLES HENRY LEWIS was born December 14, 1852, in Springfield, Ohio where his parents, the Rev. Charles Ferris Lewis and Maria Edwards Kiloh (Lewis) had recently moved to conduct a private school for girls. Charles was the second oldest of 9 boys born to his parents, and was named after his father and a great uncle, Charles Henry, of his mother's. In 1861 the family moved to Wakeman, Ohio, where Charles lived for a few years and helped support the family by clerking in a local store owned by a Mr. Bunce. Around 1870 Charles moved to Cleveland, Ohio. One of his employers there was a Mr. DeForest who later aided Charles in selecting a cemetery lot in Lake View Cemetery, Cleveland, for the burial of Charles' father who died in 1874. In 1878 Charles' mother and two youngest brothers, Stanley and Archie, came to live with him in the house on old Davenport Street in Cleveland. In 1885 Charles married Minnie Marshall who was greatly beloved by all the family. Her untimely death in 1889 at the birth of her second son Henry was a great blow to Charles from which he never quite fully recovered. A great strain of sadness seemed to run through his life from here on, although the writer recalls him as a kindly man with a quiet twinkle in his eyes that seemed to be struggling to overcome his misfortunes. In 1892 he married Maybelle Knowlton who was his faithful wife and companion for 36 years and who bore him four children-- two girls and two boys. But sorrow struck again with the deaths of their second child Marie in her infancy in 1895, and of their third child Ray Spenser when only about three years old in 1900. These tragedies coupled with the failure of Charles and his older brother John in their partnership in business as successors to Kennedy, De Foust, Parsons & Co., caused by the financial depression of 1895, brought Charles to an alarming state of illness which, to read the record, affected his health for much of the rest of his life. Charles had inherited a deep religious sense from his parents, and this combined with material and spiritual aid from family and friends enabled him to recover his position in life's battles. For awhile he was in Toledo with an old friend in the bicycle business, but then came back to Cleveland where he was given a position as book keeper in Kinney and Levan's store, a position he held until the middle 1920's when his health broke down. His wife, Maybelle, passed away in 1928, and Charles died August 14, 1930, at the age of 78. He had lived a good many years in his own home in Cleveland where he had built a house near his younger brother Clarence in Mayfield Heights during the early 1900's. At the time of his death he was living at 3025 East 130th Street, Cleveland. Final services were held at Heights Presbyterian Church, Mayfield and Superior Roads, Saturday, August 16, 1930, from which church he received a monthly pension shortly before he died.

Francis Melville Lewis, the third son of the Rev. Charles Ferris Lewis and Maria Edwards Kiloh, early learned, along with his brothers, the meaning of survival by hard work. Because of the large family he left school at the age of fourteen to work on farms in the vicinity of Wakeman, Ohio, and in the local barrel factory. When only nineteen he began the publication of a weekly newspaper, and for many years thereafter was in the printing and publishing business. In 1902 he founded a technical journal called "Hotel Life" in furtherance of the hotel business throughout the United States, and in 1903 founded the Ohio Hotels Association and for ten years was its secretary. The acquaintances and prestige gained in this activity decided him to enter the hotel brokerage business, and he gave up the publication of "Hotel Life" in 1920. The brokerage business proved to be quite successful and among the many properties he sold are listed The Hollenden, Cleveland; Waldorf, Toledo; The Avis, Baton Rouge, La.; The Palmer, Paducah, Ky., and others. His wife, Edna Climena Bailey, was a faithful and efficient helpmate during all their married life together, and she was loved by everyone who knew her. Uncle Melville, as I remember him, was a jovial cheerful chap, full of fun and pranks. His letters show constant concern and interest in members of the Lewis family, and the record given here of the first seven generations of our Lewis's in America is largely the result of his research and compilation. Francis Melville was named after a famous clergyman of the Church of England.

Pictures of Bessie Edna Lewis, oldest child of Francis Melville Lewis and Edna Climena Bailey, indicated she was a very attractive young lady in her youth and a charming woman in her more adult years. She attended Central High School in Cleveland, Ohio, graduating in 1899, and while there met her future husband, Harrison Siner Colburn, who at the age of 20 was teaching Drawing and Art. After finishing highschool she spent one year at Lake Erie College, Painesville, Ohio. She was married to Mr. Colburn on August 15, 1900 in the home of her parents in Cleveland, Ohio, and left at once for their future home in New York City. Mr. Colburn, born of New England puritan stock removed as a young lad with his family from their home in Fitchburg, Massachusetts to Toledo, Ohio, where he graduated from High and Manual Training School. From 1895 to 1898 he taught in the Cleveland Central Highschool. He graduated from Purdue University, Indiana, in mechanical engineering in 1900. Following his marriage to Bessie later that year and their removal to New York, where he had accepted a position as Educational Director of the West Side YMCA of Manhattan, he decided to persue his education further. So during the next six years while he held his position with the YMCA, he studied at Columbia University where he got a master's degree in education in 1902 and later his PhD. He was then offered the presidency of an Ohio College, and the deanship of Columbia School of Education. But a financier friend who was active in YMCA work influenced Mr. Colburn to take up a banking career. He served as a trust officer of the Flatbush Trust Company for three years (1906-1909) then resigned to assume the presidency of the Deed Realty Company, a New York building and development company with extensive interests in Brooklyn and vicinity. In March 1910, however, he left Deed Realty to return to the Flatbush Trust Company upon being elected a third vice president to assume active charge of that company's affairs and assistant to its president. About 1914 he left the banking business and re-entered the real-estate field, and about 1917 organized his own industrial real estate concern in New York City called the Harrison S. Colburn Company. He achieved national and international prominence in this field, being consulted by people from all over the world. In 1933 he had the first of three strokes and died in 1934. He was a friendly, helpful man who loved his work and worked hard at it, who was gifted in organization, and very active in his field. He was vice-president of the National Association of Realtors, among other things. After his death, his wife, Bessie, married twice: (1). to David McConaughy about 1937 in Montclair, New Jersey. They were divorced in 1940. He died a few years later. (2) to Howard Marston Thomas, 25th of November, 1944, in Montclair, New Jersey. He died May 30, 1962 in Cranford, New Jersey. There were no children by these later two marriages. (The above information is derived from the following sources; Letters from Florence Colburn Gelhaar, and Alta Colburn Steege, Edna Climena Bailey Lewis's "Genealogy of the Bailey Family", old family photographs, and news item appearing March 8, 1910 in the "Brooklyn Eagle" relative to Mr. Colburn's appointment as a third vice-president of the Flatbush Trust Company.)

Don seems to have come from another line of Lewis's than that covered by this genealogy. After their marriage Joy and Don together experienced frequent address changes occasioned by Don's moves to different military camps while in the service. During this period Joy was variously occupied at a radio station, at accounting, and at teaching school. Don went ahead with his military tour of duty after graduating from St. Lawrence University in 1951. After fulfilling this obligation to his country, he was able to return to civilian life and pursue his studies at the University of Rochester where he obtained a Master's Degree in 1959. He is currently employed by the Eastman Kodak Company in their Production Planning Division at Rochester, New York. He is active in civic affairs, is a Jaycee Key Man, enjoys golf, and has an interest in furniture making. (Information from Florence May Colburn Gelhaar and Marilyn Joy Gelhaar Lewis.)

CHILDREN(order of birth) and SPOUSES (M)

1. Winifred Kiloh Lewis, Born 10 August 1900, Cleveland Heights, Ohio (No. 9-1-53)

M. Joseph Wray Stewart II., 30 June 1923

Clarence Herbert Lewis was the fourth oldest of the nine sons born to the Reverend Charles Ferris Lewis and Maria Edwards Kiloh (Lewis). He was named after Bishop Herbert of the Episcopal Church, according to the record of his brother Francis Melville Lewis. At the time of Clarence's birth his parents had moved to Germantown, Ohio, to teach in a new school called a "Collegiate Institute,", but this didn't work out and was followed first by a move to Worthington, Ohio, and finally to Wakeman, Ohio. Here Clarence and his older brothers spent most of their spare time helping to support the family by working for farmers around Wakeman, and for the local barrel factory. After the death of his father in 1874 his mother finally gave up the Wakeman home and moved to Cleveland with her younger boys to live for awhile with her son Charlie. Clarence went to Amherst, Ohio to help his brother Melville in the printing business there. He boarded at the Jackson House where he met and became engaged to the proprietor's daughter, Carrie Jackson. They were married in 1878 and came to Cleveland late that year where Clarence entered the employ of the American News Company. Not long after a position opened for him with the Bingham Company, wholesale hardware dealers, where he remained for most the rest of his business career. Carrie Jackson was a vivacious and lovable person, and it was a great sorrow to all, especially to her husband, when she died in December 1896 after a period of declining health. She and Clarence had no children. At the time Clarence was superintendent of the Sunday School in the Methodist Church, which he and Carrie had belonged to. Soon after Carrie's death, Clarence broke up their home and boarded for awhile with his brother Charlie. In September, 1898, he married his minister's sister, Mary Margaret Young, her brother, the Rev. E. C. Young performing the ceremony. Whether prior thereto or subsequently, it is not clear in the record just when, but it is stated that the Rev. Young and his sister became Presbyterians, and so also did Clarence. He and his wife (known and beloved by all as Margaret) built one of the first homes in Cleveland Heights where they lived just shortly before the birth of their only child, Winifred Kiloh Lewis in 1900. They resided there for many happy years.

About 1908 Clarence and his brother Charlie became greatly interested in the construction of a new Presbyterian Church near their two homes on the heights and was known as the Heights Presbyterian Church, located at Mayfield and Superior Roads. The church is now known as the Forest Hill Presbyterian Church, located at 3031 Monticello Blvd., Cleveland Heights, Ohio, 44118. The writer's recollection of his uncle Clarence Lewis is one of a cheerful and kindly man whom we used to visit with his wife "aunt Margaret" and cousin Winifred in their Heights home when we lived near them during the years 1910-1912. It is with regret that my family moving into the Chicago area in 1912 took us away from many of our Ohio friends and relatives whom we subsequently lost track of, so that our record of uncle Clarence's life from here on is incomplete and ends with his death in Stuart, Florida, January 8, 1925.

His wife, our "aunt Margaret", was a great favorite in our family in her later years when she came to help keep house for my father, Archibald Heber Lewis, in Western Springs, Illinois. She was born of fine Pennsylvania stock in Mt. Nebo, near Lancaster, Pa., and maintained an unending interest in the welfare and progress of mankind, keeping herself up to date on many of the new developments in life which open promising possibilities in various fields of human endeavor. After her husband's death she owned and managed several different apartment hotels. Later she took care of and ran the affairs of a Professor Severance in Cleveland who was quite incapacitated. Finally in 1951 she came to Illinois to live with my father, each to be a companion to the other in their last years. (Information derived from the Memoirs of Maria Edwards Kiloh Lewis, Letters from Winifred Kiloh Lewis Stewart, and personal recollections of the writer).

M. Anne Beattie Rose, 6 September 1952, Louisville, Kentucky (No. 10-2-82W)

Winifred Kiloh Lewis was the only child of Clarence Herbert Lewis and Mary Margaret Young Lewis. Her early life was spent in the home of her parents on Cleveland Heights, Ohio, where she received her early education in the local schools. At the age of 23 she married Joseph Wray Stewart, a 1923 graduate of the New York University School of Engineering. The following extract from a recent letter written by Winifred Kiloh Lewis, gives a brief resume of their life together. Prior to marriage,"Joe went for two years to the Cincinnati School of Engineering; then was a pilot in World War I; worked 1 yr. after that; then back to finish school. He has been working all these years as an Industrial Engineer. I was a housewife all this time. In 1948 we moved to California, and in 1952 Joe started his own business (automobile brake bonding and allied parts). He had a partner 20 years his junior. Joe retired in 1959 and we traveled in Europe and finally all the way around the world. On June 6, 1968 his partner was killed in an automobile accident, so we immediately had to take over the running of the business. I am as much involved in it as Joe."

The writer is grateful to Winifred Kiloh Lewis Stewart for furnishing many of the addresses of Lewis cousins and other leads which enabled me to get started with this genealogy. PWL.

It should also be mentioned that both Joe and Winifred are sail boat enthusiasts.

1. Valerie Anne Kline, Born 19 February 1969, Saugus Calif. (No. 12-1-187)

Diane Danielle Delchamps (Kline), oldest child of Margaret Anne Stewart (Delchamps) and Harold John Delchamps, Jr., received her early education in the schools of California. After finishing high school she travelled in Europe on an art tour conducted by the Los Angeles County Art Museum, at which time she visited Italy, Austria, Switzerland, France, and England. On returning home she completed 2 years of college, majoring in sociology, with the object of becoming a psychiatric social worker, but left college to study hairstyling in which she was interested as a hobby. This eventually developed into an occupation which she followed until becoming a mother. She entered many hairstyling contests, and has won seven trophies, of which she is very proud, for hairstyling, cutting and coloring hair. She is also interested in various forms of art, and before meeting Lewis Kline, had hoped to return to Europe and study art in Florence, Italy. She is now deeply interested in caring for her baby, making a home for her husband, and practicing the domestic arts of sewing, and cooking. Herhusband, Merton Lewis Kline, before their marriage served for four years in the Strategic Air Command of the United States Air Force. Currently occupied in testing hydraulic components for missles, he is also going to college with a view to becoming an electrical engineer and designing the components he now tests.

2. James Andrew Stewart, Born 10 March 1955, St. Louis, Missouri. (No.11-2-124)

5. John William Stewart, Born 4 October 1962, Ridgewood, New Jersey. (No.11-5-164)

Joseph Wray Stewart III is the youngest of two children born to Joseph Wray Stewart II and Winifred Kiloh Lewis Stewart. It is said he bears the same name as many of his forebears in the Stewart family, hence the numerals applied to his name, his father's and his son's in this genealogy are accurate only so far as this record of the Lewis family is concerned. He attended Ridgewood High School, Ridgewood, New Jersey, graduating in 1948. He then went to Williams College, Williamstown, Massachusetts, where he graduated with honors with a BA degree in Economics in 1952. He married Anne Beattie Rose in the fall of that year, and worked for Lever Brothers for eleven years after leaving college. He is currently in Marketing work for the Confections Division of Beech-Nut, Inc., New York City. His wife, Anne, graduated from Ridgewood High School, also in 1948, and attended Maryland College for Women two years, 1948-1950, and is currently occupied in the praiseworthy job of making a home for her husband and five children. Boating is one of the family hobbies, an interest inherited from Joe's father in California, no doubt. (Data from Anne Beattie Rose Stewart).

Gilbert DeLancy Lewis, 5th of nine sons born to the Reverend Charles Ferris Lewis and Maria Edwards Kiloh Lewis was named after friends of the family, the Gilberts, and also after DeLancy a famous episcopal bishop of western New York. At an early age he, like his brothers, learned the meaning and necessity of hard work for survival in a pioneer community. In his spare time from school he worked at various jobs including store clerk in the little country town of Wakeman, Ohio, where his parents had finally settled after Gilbert's birth in Worthington, Ohio. Prior to their father's untimely death early in September 1874, the oldest brother, John, and his younger brother, Gilbert, had learned the occupation of telegraphy and were able to help support themselves and family by working at this trade for the railroads in the vicinity. He and his brothers lived in Cleveland with their mother on Davenport Street shortly after her removal there from Wakeman in 1878. For awhile he was with New York Central in Collingwood, Ohio, later in Illinois with the Pennsylvania R.R., finally in Toledo. There he married Mary Ann Dunnigan. They had five children, two of whom died at an early age. Around 1905 Gilbert and his wife purchased a comfortable new home in Toledo where they spent many happy years of their lives with their children. Gilbert and his wife are both buried in Calvary Cemetery, Toledo,O.

M. Rosean Kensley, 23 August 1924, Philadelphia, Penna.

WALTER SWINNERTON LEWIS, sixth son and child of Reverend Charles Ferris Lewis and Maria Edwards Kiloh (Lewis) was a man of the most gentlemanly character and one who was regarded with the highest respect and deepest affection by all who knew him. Like his brothers he knew the hardships of poverty and labor in his early life, and like them too, with the exception of his youngest brother Archie, he had little formal schooling, being obliged to quit school at the age of 12 years because of his father's death and the necessity of helping to support his mother and large family of brothers. But because of his heritage and training he acquired a culture and refinement superior to many whose educational advantages were of the highest. His first work was that of a printer's devil for his brother Melville's country newspaper in Ohio. When the family first moved to Cleveland in 1878, Walter worked in succession for Ryders Art Store, Worthington's, The Iron Age Co., the Cleveland Baking Co., and the Merriam, Morgan Paraffin Co. His first sales work was at the age of 18 with Ryder's. About the time of his marriage to Florence Cornelia Jewett in 1892 he entered the book publishing firm of Taylor-Austin Co., Cleveland, O. In 1900 he left Cleveland, it is said partly because of his wife's health, and settled in Philadelphia where for 16 years he was manager of the book department at Strawbridge & Clothier's department store of that city. He was active in bringing department stores into the American Booksellers Association, and served as secretary from 1911 to 1914, and as first vice-president until the time of his death in 1928. In 1916, Mr. Lewis was appointed manager of the book department of the Presbyterian Board of Publications and Sabbath School Work and for ten years brought to that work the wealth of his experience in the realm of books and enshrined it with the influence of his idealism and religious devotion. He resigned December 31, 1926 to accept a position with Harper Brothers as head of their Religious Book Department in New York City, and in the short intervening time of one year before his death established himself as a recognized factor in the field of religious books. To their utmost sorrow and loss his family, relatives, friends and business acquaintances learned of his sudden death by heart attack in Newark, New Jersey at the Park Station of the Hudson tubes on the morning of February 5th, 1928, as he was starting to his New York office. In addition to many printed "Memoriams" to Walter Swinnerton Lewis which the writer has in his file, and from some of which part of the above account is derived, are some two dozen individual letters to Harper Brothers from associates of Walter S. Lewis's in the book business, written on the letter-head stationery of their various firms expressing shock and sympathy at his passing and acknowledging with respect his leadership in his field.

Walter Swinnerton Lewis was left a widower upon the death of his wife Florence in 1917. He was an active churchman to the end. He was especially devoted to the welfare of young men to whom as well as to many others the winsomeness of his personality, the strength of his character, the nobility of his ideals, his appreciation of humor, his contagious and hearty laugh, his ability to make and keep friends, his interest in and talent for music - especially chorus work- all had a special appeal.

Church work had always been a major factor in Walter Swinnerton Lewis's life, as might be expected from his family background in early boyhood. In his early youth in Cleveland he was associated with the activites of Plymouth Church there. Later while representing his firm in Chicago (around 1885) he was associated with the Moody Bible Institue where it is said he first met his future wife, Florence Cornelia Jewett. In Philadelphia, they joined St. Paul's Presbyterian Church where he served as elder, assistant Sunday school superintendent and musical director for many years. Both Walter S. Lewis and his wife Florence are buried in Westminster Cemetery, Philadelphia.

Walter Swinnerton Lewis attended the Book Fair every year in Chicago while he was with the Presbyterian Board of Publications, and it was the privilege of the writer's family to have uncle Walter stay at our home in the suburb of La Grange on these occasions. We got to know him well and looked forward each year with eager pleasure to these visits. I can truly say he was one of the finest Christian gentlemen I have known.

(Editor's note: It may be observed by some that newspaper accounts and other records concerning the life and death of Walter S. Lewis usually spelled his middle name Swinnerton with a single "n". This is an error stemming from releases made at the time by his publisher brother, Francis Melville Lewis, who seems to have always used the single "n" even in his earlier writings of the Lewis family. Walter was named after a family of Swinnertons who were members of St. John's Episcopal Church in Worthington, Ohio, where the Reverend Charles Ferris Lewis preached from 1858 to 1860. The Lewis's were very fond of the Swinnertons who had a son Walter. I have in file two letters written to Francis Melville Lewis from a Miss Laura Swinnerton, who was a daughter in this family and who signed her name with the double"n". This may be considered the best evidence of the correct spelling, and which is also attested to by Frank Archibald Lewis, oldest son of Walter Swinnerton Lewis.)

Stanley Jewett Lewis is the oldest of three children born to Frank Archibald Lewis and Edith Elwood Mattson Lewis. He attended Evanston High School, Evanston, Illinois (1934-1938) then went to Wesleyan University, Middletown, Connecticut for four years, graduating in 1942 with a BA degree in Government. Prior to this, however, he had married Louise Doniphan Gilkeson of Fisherville, Virginia in the Tinkling Spring Church of that town. He taught at the Staunton Military Academy, 1947-1948, and has been with the Baylor School in Chattanooga, Tennessee since 1948. He enjoys studying History and various Religions, and coaching swimming. He served in the United States Army four years,(1942-1946). His wife, Doniphan (Don), attended Fisherville, Virginia, High School, finishing in 1941. She obtained an AB degree in 1945 from Meredith College, Raleigh, North Carolina, and enjoys Reading, Sports, and teaching kindergarten. (Data from Stanley Jewett Lewis.)

1. Brian Burroughs, Born 7 June 1961, Athens, Greece. (Adopted) (No.11-1-150)

Barbara Isabel Lewis (Johnson), second child of Frank Archibald Lewis and Edith Elwood Mattson, received her early education in the public schools of Evanston, Illinois. At an early age she showed marked dramatic talent and appeared in a radio serial of the time as the child character "Olivia", in that story. She entered Rockford College, Rockford, Illinois as a freshman, later transferring to Wellesley College, Wellesley, Massachusetts, when her mother moved east, where she graduated with a BA degree in English. Later she did some work towards an MA degree at the University of Washington, Seattle, and still later took courses in education at the University of California, Berkeley, California. She and her husband are both English teachers, he at Diablo Valley College near their home, and she, although retired, doing volunteer work in remedial reading at the highschool level. Her husband, Wendell Burroughs Johnson, obtained his BA degree in 1950 from the University of Washington, and MA degree (both in English) from San Francisco State College in 1953. He has also taken work towards his PhD at Wayne State, Detroit, Michigan, and Stanford University, California. The couple likes to travel, and for one year, 1960-61, Wendell taught as a Fulbright English teacher in Athens, Greece, and for the next year was in charge of the Fulbright program there. While in Athens, Barbara and Wendell adopted their son, Brian. Barbara's interest in dramatics and the theater continues, and Wendell is active in tennis and other sports. All three members of the family enjoy swimming. (Data from Barbara Isabel Lewis Johnson).

Norman Stanley Lewis was the 7th of nine sons born to the Rev. Charles Ferris Lewis and Maria Edwards Kiloh Lewis. He received little formal schooling, but like his brothers obtained his education in the world of life's realities, tempered by the Christian influence of his family ties and devotion to their church. He was sober, conscientious, and industrious - qualities which, combined with those previously mentioned, enabled him to eventually rise to a position of distinction as treasurer of one of the important industries in the country, namely: The National Malleable Castings Co., manufacturers of castings and forgings for the railroads. It is perhaps interesting to note that in an era when "the bull in the woods" type of personality was all too often the accepted quality for leadership in industry, Stanley was able to rise to the position he did on the basis of his kindly nature, Christian character, and attention to business at hand. He was perhaps the most successful, financially, of his seven brothers who were contemporary with him.

Norman Stanley was named after a member of the church in Worthington, Ohio, where the Rev. Charles Ferris Lewis preached in 1858 to 1860. After the death of the Reverend Lewis, Stanley with his brothers Walter and Archie, and their mother, moved from Wakeman, Ohio, where Stanley was born, to Cleveland, Ohio, and lived with their older brother, Charlie, on Davenport Street. Here they became acquainted with the Pope boys, another large family of eight brothers, some of whom remained lifelong friends of the Lewis brothers. Charlie was employed at the time in a store at 9 West Superior Street, Cleveland, operated by a Mr. De-

Forrest, where a place was also made for Stanley. Stanley held the job for 12 years until 1890 when he went to Toledo, Ohio, having taken a position there with the National Malleable Castings Company as local treasurer. A year later he married Grace Chatterton of Cleveland. They lived in Toledo for nearly 10 years where all three of their children were born. Then in 1900 Stanley was made local treasurer of the Sharon, Pa., plant of the National Malleable Castings Company. He and his wife, Grace, and their three children, Steve (Paul), Janet, and Margaret, lived there for the next nine years.

(The writer recalls a hurried week-end trip with his father, Archie, from Cleveland to Sharon, Pa., via the Erie R.R., to visit these cousins. The brief visit must have been enjoyable because it was past time to catch the return train to Cleveland before we knew it. After a hasty farewell at Stanley's home we ran to catch the train. But being a small lad, and dad, finding me an encumbrance, rushed up to a man passing by on a horse-drawn wagon, tossed me up on the seat beside the startled stranger, and breathlessly beseeched him to drive us to the station to catch the train. In spite of an offer of cash, the man refused to accommodate us, fearing by doing so he would be a party to a kidnapping. Needless to say, we missed our train, took the next one which was very late, and got home at all hours.)

In November 1909, his company transferred Stanley to the main office in Cleveland where he was made first assistant treasurer over the firm's 6 plants. The family moved into a nice home at 90 Rosemont Road, East Cleveland, Ohio, where frequent happy Lewis gatherings occurred under the cheerful hospitality engendered by Stanley, Grace, and their children. About 1912 Stanley was again promoted, this time to treasurer of the entire National Malleable Castings Co. (The name was later changed to the National Malleable and Steel Castings Co.) At the same time, his younger brother, Archie, who had been with the National Malleable for nearly 12 years, was named local treasurer over the Chicago plants of the company and was transferred to that city from Cleveland. In 1918 Stanley and Grace built a new home in Shaker Heights, Ohio, where they lived until Stanley's death.

Business occasionally brought Stanley and Grace to Chicago at which times they generally stayed at our home in suburban La Grange - an event that was a pleasure to all whenever it occurred. The death of their only son, Steve, in action during world war I in France on October 31, 1918, shortly before the armistice, was a heavy blow to Stanley and Grace. They began to plan a trip to Europe together to visit the battle grounds and areas where Steve had seen action in the war. But Stanley's health gradually declined from this time on so that he was unable to make the trip. The writer's last recollection of his uncle Stanley was when he and aunt Grace came out to California in the spring of 1926 and paid me a visit at Stanford University towards the end of my senior year. I was fortunate in being able to borrow a Chevrolet touring car from a classmate and to give aunt Grace and uncle Stanley a tour of the university grounds and the surrounding area of the beautiful Santa Clara Valley. It was with great sorrow I learned of uncle Stanley's death back at his home in Cleveland shortly after his return from this California trip.

In 1928, aunt Grace made a 10 months tour alone of England, Europe, and Egypt. When in France she visited the scenes of Steve's world war I service.

CLIMBING MONT BLANC ALONE
EXPERIENCE OF STEVENSON P. LEWIS
SEPTEMBER 26, 1917

- - - - - - - - - - -

Editor's note: Immediately after graduation from the University of Wisconsin in February 1917, Steve enlisted in the American Ambulance Field Service. The United States had not yet declared war. He sailed for France on March 12, 1917 and served with a Unit attached to the French Army, 97th Division Infantry, in the vicinity of Verdun until September 5, 1917. It was for this service the French awarded him the Croix-de-Guerre. (See Citation of Stevenson Paul Lewis in 9th Generation). The United States declared war on April 6, 1917 and Steve felt the quickest way to get into the fighting on the Front was to enlist in the American army in France rather than return to the United States. So he arranged to enter officers training school. At this time he went into southern France for a rest and before returning to Paris (about October 15, 1917) to enter the army transport service and later the Field Artillery he made this ascent of Mont Blanc alone, without a guide. The following is his own account of the adventure:

- - - - - - - - - - -

I thought it a poor idea to tramp all around the Alps, be in Chamonix and around Mt. Blanc without even giving it a try. H ad asked guides, mountaineers, men who had spent many seasons in the region, and the universal opinion was that climbing without a guide was very dangerous and that it was foolhardy to attempt the climb without a guide. Picked up a book giving the history of Mont Blanc and the early explorers who had found a passage to the summit. It was full of incidents leading to the death of those who had tried to climb Mont Blanc without a guide and in every instance there were two or more in the party. I thought we should give it a try, although my partner was not very strong for the trip - thought it a useless risk, nothing to obtain, but the reason that it involved a chance was enough. We had tackled everything else that looked interesting and the record of attempts on this height made it the best prospect of all. Financially it was now or never for me (a guide was worth $20.00). We walked to the Mer de Glace the first day in Chamonix. I planned to rest up the next day and then try Mont Blanc after my day's rest. However, on the day set for leisure in Chamonix events occurred which caused a change of plans.

I went to the guide bureau about 11 AM of the day set for leisure before trying the climb and got some maps of various routes. Found that of the four possible routes to the summit, the upper crossing of Glacier des Bossons was the one used. One possible route was up the Montagne de la Cote, the old historic route which led up the rise of ground between the two Glaciers Bossons and Taconnaz. I intended taking this as there was less of the glacier to cross. There were three crossings of Bossons. The lower two looked best, as it seemed the less ice one had to cross the better it would be for me, as I knew nothing of the tricks of ice and snow. I learned that three men and two guides had left Chamonix at 9 AM that morning and if I hired a guide from the bureau and hurried, might catch them. Left to find my partner. He was not very strong for the trip - however, we ordered up a big dinner, bought some chocolate, canned meat and bread, borrowed two long, steel pointed poles and were on our way out of Chamonix by 12 noon. Heard that a party had been up the day before, saw trail near Grand Mulets thru telescope and noted clearness, knew the chances were the best now especially with this latest party three hours ahead of us and we planned on catching them before they reached the glacier. We were told to buy mittens, heavy socks, get heavy cap, sweater and ice pick. We took no extra clothes at all and each had a long pole with steel point. Took route thru les Barats, les Tissours, past Cascade du Dard. Left partner as he did not walk fast enough and speed was needed if we were to get up to half-way point before dark. Passed a shack on the trail - an old woman came out and asked us where we were bound. She shook her head when she saw our outfit and knew our destination. Passed Pavillion de la Bara. Trail led up along aerial railway, now in process of construction, from river flat below to Aiguille du Midi; quite a piece of engineering and expense for tourists - getting ready for them after the war, I guess. Passed Pierre Pointus at 1:40 arrived at Pierre a l'Echelle at 2:00 PM. Two hours up and the party running on schedule time had taken four hours to come this far, so I learned from a party en route down. Passed a party coming down - two women, two men and two guides - at edge of glacier. They told me it was very bad with party and when I told them I was alone, said "no use". Guides waved me back - told me to return to Chamonix. I had no reason to stop yet and under those circumstances continued up. The trail was fairly good over the ice, though as it turned out my partner upon reaching the glacier, was unable to follow it at all and returned to Chamonix. I lost trail several times, but always retraced steps to point where I left trail, and by scanning ice could note ice steps or ice pick marks. There were several bad spots before I reached the junction of the two glaciers - Bossons and Taconnaz - here it was climb up icy crags, straddle ice ridges with their top no more than 6 inches wide and a 100 foot drop on either side. The trail crossed one crevice 4 feet wide, 75 feet deep, slippery ice on either side. At another spot a frail wooden ladder spanned a 25 foot gap over a 100 foot chasm. The ladder was kept from slipping by a wire fastened to a light iron peg driven in snow on upper side of crossing. Arrived at les Grand Mulets at 4 PM - 2 hours crossing the glacier - total of 4 hours up. Met party here and they advised me that it had taken them 6 hours to reach this point. It was cool and a cup of hot tea tasted mighty good. The sunset was beautiful among those snowy slopes and scattered ice and rocky crags. Down in the valley it was yet summer and warm, but up there it was winter with barren rocks and dry snow. Met the party here as the usual trip is to make this spot first day and reach top and return on following day. At 2:30 the next morning the party was up, dressed in sweaters, caps over ears, heavy mittens, socks and feet wrapped in wool clothes. Both guides had ice creepers. I was dressed as usual, with nothing extra such as they had. A rope was laid out and I was asked to get in, but refused. It was very dark and cold. Guides said it was bad business, that I could easily sink into snow hole or slip off down slope and they would not know it; also said that it was very hard to find a person in darkness if there was such an accident.

The party started out at 3:00 AM, a beautiful, starry night, but no moon. Front and rear guides had candle lanterns. I followed light of rear guide; we passed over long snow ridge, then a long climb up snowy slopes, now and then a steep icy stretch. The party was able to travel fast over these spots leaving me behind in total darkness to scramble up as best I could. I certainly thanked God that the stars were out and that the snow was white. Faint at first and then gradually clearer the streak of dawn in the East grew, until by the time -5:00 AM- we had reached the Grand Plateau it was day light and very cold. An icy wind blew across this plateau and cut like a knife. I left the position to rear of party as soon as light enough and pushed on ahead. Reached refuge and observatory at Vallot. These buildings are the highest on Mont Blanc. It was here that the famous Janssen observatory was set up and later carried down by ice slides and snow avalanches. The route to the summit lay over the series of ridges called the "Bosses". The trail up the Col du Dome was steep with ice slopes on either side. Snow had drifted over the crest and covered the ice steps. I was forced to steady myself with one hand on ice, the other gripping pole. On this exposed place, with no extra clothes, it required active work to keep warm. Hands and fingers froze stiff several times and had to stop and rub them on ice until the sharp pains of returning blood were felt. Passed in this manner over Bosses du Dromadaire (4537 meters altitude). The party following in the trail I had made was rapidly catching up with me and passed me at the Rocher de la Tournette (4677). The last ridge to the summit was like walking a tight-rope or a steel girder on a 50 story building. There were steep hard snow slopes ending in precipices and rocks on either side, ridge about 10 inches wide, in many places room only for one foot at a time; trail made of snow and might give way at any time. The wind was blowing in gusts so that it was hard to keep balanced if standing erect. Reached summit at 8:00 AM - 5 hours up from the half-way shack (les Grand Mulets). The sun was out and the air was clear of clouds, so we had a wonderful view. Could see for 100 miles and more off over Swiss Alps, Matterhorn, Italian Alps, Italian Mt. Blanc. On clear days can see the Mediterranean over 300 miles away. One looks down on a vast sea of ragged peaks and mountain crests, for every mountain in Europe must look up to the snowy summit of Mont Blanc, the highest of all (4807 meters). At last I was o

At last I was on the top of the famous peak. I had climbed it alone, in spite of the list of casualties I had read of and contrary to the judgment of all men. The summit is a strip of snow 50 yards long and 3 yards wide and in the warmth of the morning sun and the invigorating air, and with the side panorama stretched out before me, it seemed I could have spent the day there. It is said you can see the Mediterranean Sea (400 K.M.) on clear days thru field glasses. The guides requested me once more to get in on the rope, but I had come up alone and wanted to try the descent alone also. The argument was good for it seems that practically all the accidents have occured in the descent.

The party started down at 8:45, passing rapidly over the "Bosses". I tried walking down in the same manner but was left behind. Several successive gusts of wind forced me down on hands and knees and I went down ever Rocher de la Tournette on stomach, legs and arms astride the ridge. Every move must be sure for there was no one near enough to see where I went if I slipped and no one in calling radius. I was going it alone on that famous summit. The party soon became specks below and I saw them stop several times and watch me for awhile. My progress was slow but I was satisfied at making progress at all. I used my ice pole at every move and was always certain it had taken good hold. Going down the Col du Dome the hard ice gave few holds for the pole, but after reaching the Vallot the worst of the trip was over. After reaching Vallot made very fast time down snowy slopes, running, sliding, falling, any way to cover the distance, for I knew if I was to make the trip in any sort of time I must hurry over the easy places and of necessity go slow over the bad spots. Reached les Grands Mulets at 10:45. Had a cup of hot tea, signed up in the official register, said good-bye to the party waiting for a hot meal in course of preparation by guides. I started down on last leg of trip at 11:30 - over Glacier Bossons. The sun had been out all morning and melted a treacherous slippery surface on the ice. It is much worse returning than going up, for you are always looking down into the possible places one might fall, while going up you are looking to the places you are working to arrive at. Crossed the ladder over chasm, down over double S shaped formations, twisting, slippery routes, over, around and under ice. One spot was a steep icy descent over a ridge 8 inches wide, wide deep crevices on either side, no place to steady self with pole. Used tight-rope method and at bottom the ice widened out for a couple of steps, then a three-foot crevice to jump. As I remember the whole trip the hand of God was with me to keep my feet steady and balance, right here more than at any other place. I took wrong trail just beyond this point and was lost for a while in this maze of curved, twisted, broken ice masses. Retraced my steps and struck out by instinct more than trust in vision and after passing the "Junction" the worst was over. The "slick" surface of the ice at one spot caused a slip, but I caught myself with pole and fingers in a crack of ice a couple of feet from edge of a hundred foot drop. Near the edge of the glacier came on a crevice with fresh marks where someone had slid down. The opening had a bend that cut off view of base of crevice and I heard the faint sound of running water. I whistled and shouted, but no answer. The person had been killed from all appearances, as there were no indications of his being hauled out. Rocks were falling along edge of glacier. Passed an Englishman who had just been missed by one. I made a rapid crossing here and struck hard rock and earth once more. Hit a fast gait down mountain side for Chamonix, arriving at 3:30, four hours down from les Grand Mulets. It took three hours, however, to cross that glacier - about one-sixth the distance down mountain trail. Total time on trip was 9 hours - Chamonix to summit, and 6 hours down. Met chief of guide bureau on street. He had watched a person crawling along summit alone. He said I was lucky to be back. Half the town had been watching through field glasses. Trip is considered doubtful for two without a guide, and alone, the chances were considerably less. A rumor came out that evening that a man had offered $200.00 to any one climbing Mont Blanc alone. I asked about it next morning but could get no definite information. At the post-office they told me it was considered impossible for anyone to climb the mountain alone and that it had never been done before. I left Chamonix at 3:00 that afternoon with the respect of the townspeople and an official certificate from the guide bureau stating that I had climbed Mont Blanc alone.

The compiler of these records is indebted to Steve's sister, Margaret Lewis Atwood for the foregoing account of the Mont Blanc adventure as recorded by Steve himself, and also for the brief account of Steve's subsequent military career and his untimely death in action on the front lines 12 days before the armistice, world war I:

As stated above, after climbing Mont Blanc, Steve returned to Paris, entered the American Army Transport Service and later the Field Artillery. Then on December 16, 1917 he was commissioned a Second Lieutenant and assigned to officers training school at Saumur in France. About July 1, 1918 he was attached to the 124th Field Artillery and was in the thick of the fighting at St. Mihiel and in the Argonne district. He was killed about 50 miles northwest of Verdun and buried with military honors in the American Battle Area Cemetary in the Meusse area. His body later was returned to Cleveland, Ohio, and is buried in the Norman Stanley Lewis family plot in Lakeview Cemetary of that city. At the time of Steve's death he was serving as Regimental Reconnaissance and Liaison officer to the Colonel's Staff and on that day orders were received commissioning him a First Lieutenant, October 31, 1918. Concerning this, Steve in his last letter dated October 21, 1918, says, "Something almost forgotten. I am recommended for a first lieutenancy and papers will probably be here in a month or so raising me a notch. Also recommended by Colonel as instructor at Saumur. They wrote here for officers to be recommended for instructors. As soon as I found out, I went to him to make certain I would not be recommended, for to be sent back there would be the biggest disappointment possible now that this outfit is in the line, and though it may be considered a reward for good work both at Saumur and here, it is no place to be with any fighting going on. He had already sent in names and said my name headed list. I can only hope they don't get me. The regiment has been cited twice by headquarters and once more we are allowed to wear a gold star on sleeve. This is for good work done in the line."

There was considerable delay in the War Department setting their records straight on Steve's promotion in view of his death and the armistice just 12 days later. However, a letter dated November 30, 1926, from the War Department, The Adjutant General's Office, Washington. D. C., Robert C. Davis, Major General, states in part:

"I take pleasure in sending you today under separate cover a posthumous commission as authorized by Congress in 1925, in his name as of the grade of first lieutenant, Field Artillery, to date from October 31, 1918, the date on which his appointment to that grade was announced in orders issued by the Commanding General, American Expeditionary Forces, France."

Two posthumous awards were given by order of General John J. Pershing for Steve's service in the 124th Field Artillery as follows:

I. 2nd Lieutenant Stevenson P. Lewis is recommended for his distinguished and exceptional gallantry at Meusse-Argonne October 31, 1918 in the operations of the American Expeditionary Forces in testimony thereof and as an expression of his valor, I award him this citation March 27, 1919.

III. G.H.Q. American Expeditionary Forces
Citation Orders No. 3 France, June 3, 1919
The following named officers and enlisted men of the American Expeditionary Forces are cited for gallantry in action and are entitled to wear a silver star on the Victory Medal Ribbon, as prescribed by Paragraph 1 G.O. 75 C.s., these headquarters:

2nd Lieutenant Stevenson P. Lewis (deceased), 124 F.A. for gallantry in action on 31 October, 1918, during the Meusse-Argonne offensive, at Bois de Bantheville, in reconnoitering the front line to locate artillery observation post.

Janet Kiloh Lewis (Edwards) was the 2nd child of Norman Stanley Lewis and Grace Chatterton Lewis. Her early schooling in the towns of Sharon, Pa., and Cleveland, Ohio, was followed by attendance at Mount Holyoke College, South Hadley, Massachusetts, where she graduated with a BA degree in 1918. Shortly after graduation she married Cyril John Edwards I, and soon had a family of her own. She was interested in good works for the welfare of other people and did much volunteer work of this nature. The family lived in Detroit, Michigan area.

Her husband, Cyril John Edwards I, was founder and owner of the C. J. Edwards Co., Detroit, Michigan, manufacturers agents for automobile parts such as tires, speedometers, etc. The company sold to the big manufacturers in large quantities and grew to be a quite prosperous business. The firm's name was later changed to the present one, Edwards Associates, when Cyril I became less active in its affairs and his sons and others outside the family directed its operations. Cyril John Edwards I was a graduate of Kenyon College, Gambier, Ohio.

M. Walter Hartwell Morse II., 27 June, 1952, Scarsdale, New York

Margaret Edwards Lewis (Atwood) is the youngest of three children born to Norman Stanley Lewis and Grace Chatterton Lewis. She states that her home life was about as ideal as any could be, for it was truly a happy home and life in the small town of Sharon, Pennsylvania, was simple, care-free, and full of the pleasures a child used to have with family and friends. She says her grandmother, Maria Edwards Kiloh Lewis, came to live with them in East - Cleveland, Ohio, for about the last 4 or 5 years of her life, and was a joy with her delightful sense of humor, her serenity, and her love of music. Her grandmother loved to play the piano, - and to dance, which with her excess weight was surprising. And she carried on a voluminous correspondence, and altogether was a remarkable woman whom Margaret felt was never cut out to lead the hard-working kind of life she did with nine sons on a missionary's earnings. She was never bitter nor unkind, but a joy to be with. According to her grandmother, this feeling was mutual, with respect to Margaret. After graduating from Shaw High School in East Cleveland, Margaret attended Mount Holyoke College as noted above. She then went to Western Reserve Graduate School of Social Sciences for two years, in Cleveland, while living at home (90 Rosemont Road, East Cleveland), and doing social work at the same time. In 1922 Margaret took a position with the Women's Board of Missions of the Presbyterian Church at their head office in New York city, as the Student Field Secretary. In this work she travelled over the country constantly speaking to student groups, church groups, and other conferences, on the mission work of the church. . . a most interesting job for her. In 1924 she resigned this job to marry Raymond Atwood, but continued on with a great variety of volunteer work in Girl Scouts, the church, and for the Alumnae Association of Mount Holyoke College, - serving as a Trustee of Mount Holyoke College for five years.

In 1948, after her separation from Raymond Atwood, she took a position as Assistant Supervisor of Volunteers for the Westchester County (N.Y.) Hospital, where she worked for nearly 12 years, during which time she was able to assist in putting her two daughters through college. In 1959 she obtained a position as Executive Director of the Volunteer Service Bureau of Westchester Co. She worked there 4 years until she retired in 1963, and is now living in Scarsdale, New York, at the address noted above.

After graduating from high school in 1909, Raymond Atwood went directly to work for the McCann Advertising Agency in their California office. His business career was chiefly with them from about 1910 to 1944. During this period he was manager, successively, of their Toronto, Cleveland, and Chicago offices. In 1934 he was transferred to the head office in New York city. By this time the name of the agency had been changed to McCann-Erickson Advertising Agency. Raymond was in charge of the New York office. However, in 1944 he resigned to take a position with a drug firm, but shortly after had a heart attack and had no business connections from then on. Eventually he returned to his home state of Maine where he passed away in the little town of Damariscotta, near the sea coast, in 1951.

Janet Atwood, oldest child of Raymond Atwood and Margaret Edwards Lewis Atwood, after her early schooling, went to Skidmore College, Saratoga Springs, New York, where she received a B.S. degree in 1950 in the field of Physical Education. She stayed there 4 years afterwards to teach, and then went to State Union College of Iowa, in Iowa City, to get her master's degree. She taught physical education there until 1960, then resigned to go back east and join the staff of the University of New Hampshire at Durham. Here she taught physical education for nearly 9 years, eventually becoming chairman of the women's division of physical education. Then in the spring of 1969 she resigned and is now teaching in the physical education department at Pennsylvania State University. During all this time she has done summer camp work, and for many years was Program Director of a girls' camp in New Hampshire. She has made quite a name for herself and has held several jobs in national women's organizations in the field of physical education. Her address is 157 E. Park Ave., State College, Pennsylvania, 16802.

(The writer is grateful to Margaret Edwards Lewis Atwood for the above information, which is largely copied from her correspondence.)

Archibald Heber Lewis was the youngest of nine children (all boys) born to Rev. Charles Ferris Lewis and Maria Edwards Kiloh Lewis. He was named, according to his brother Francis Mellville, after Archibald Heber "one of the greatest bishops the Church of England ever produced". On his 4th birthday occurred the tragedy of his father's death occasioned late in the previous winter by injuries resulting from the turning over of a horse-drawn sleigh in which he was being driven to one of his church parishes in the mountains of northwest Pennsylvania. Archie's early youth, therefore, like that of his older brothers was marked by the struggle against poverty which the teaching and preaching careers of their parents were unable to assuage, and which the father's untimely death had doubly burdened them. with. Soon after the Rev. Lewis's death, the family left their home in Wakeman, Ohio, and moved to Cleveland, where Archie received his early schooling, and graduated from Cleveland Central High School in 1888. He then worked a year as a sample packer for a travelling salesman for the Cleveland Worsted Mills. He was the only one of the brothers to go to college, being financed in part by his brothers Walter and Stanley. Archie entered Adelbert College of Western Reserve University, Cleveland, Ohio in 1890, originally with the intent of entering the ministry, but later changed to philosophy and history, graduating cum laude with a Phi Beta Kappa key and an AB degree in 1894. While in college he won a prize for a philosophical oration and received honorable mention for the Handy Philosophical Prize. After leaving college he did some private tutoring - one of his pupils being Robert Haven Schauffler, a cellist, who later became a famous New York music critic and musical essayist. Shortly before his marriage to Bessie Hastings Williams, a high school sweetheart, he joined the National Malleable Castings Company of Cleveland as an accountant, and eventually in 1912 was promoted to the office of local treasurer at the company's old Rockwell Street plant in Chicago, Illinois. With his wife and three children he then moved to La Grange, Illinois, a suburb of Chicago, where they settled for many years. The pinch of the forth-coming economic depression of the late 1920's and early 1930's was being felt by the National Malleable as early as 1926, and with a change in organization, Archie left the company that year. He then worked a few years soliciting accounts for the Binks Express Company, the money transfer service, but after the death of his wife, Bessie, in the pneumonia epidemic of 1928, he retired from active business. On June 26, 1930, in La Grange, he married Blanche Chipman Legget who was a spinster and an old acquaintance also of Cleveland Central High School days. The couple with Archie's daughter, Frances, then made a tour of the world, sailing from New York on the Cunard Liner, "Franconia" in the fall of 1930 and returning in the late spring of 1931 through the port of San Francisco, California. After the marriage of his children Gilbert and Frances, Archie and Blanche removed from La Grange to Blanche's old home in Saratoga Springs, New York, where Blanche died in 1946 (at the Marshall Sanitarium, Troy, N.Y.). Archie then broke up the Saratoga Springs home (which eventually was sold to Skidmore College nearby). He returned to the La Grange area where he settled in his own home in the adjacent town of Western Springs to be near his children and grandchildren. During the latter part of this time in his life, his sister-in-law, Mary Margaret Young Lewis his brother Clarence's widow) came to live with him and help him keep house until her death in 1953. Archie died peacefully two years later at the age of nearly 85 while sitting in his chair waiting for his housekeeper to serve lunch. He was buried beside his two wives in Lakeview Cemetery, Cleveland, Ohio. Archibald Heber Lewis was a great lover of the outdoors in all its manifestations, and his children remember with great pleasure the many hikes, camping trips and fishing adventures enjoyed by the family under his directions. He was very active in the Prairie Club for many years, a Chicago hiking group that scheduled walks every week-end in the forested areas of the prairies bordering the city, and in the dune lands of north western Indiana around the southern end of Lake Michigan. He had a healthy, happy, outgoing personality that never evidenced visible anger so far as his family was concerned, yet he was a good manager and provider who ruled by kindly, Christian good-will and example for the lasting benefit of his children.

During the years of her married life, Bessie Hastings Williams Lewis shared and contributed much to the happiness and welfare of her family. Her wise and loving counsel was always welcomed by her children, husband, and friends. She was active in community work and was one of the original founders and organizers of the present very effective La Grange Community Nurse and Service Association. She was born in the home of her parents at what was then 887 Case Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, (now the new site of Cleveland Central High School at 2205 East 40th St.) At an early age her father, William George Williams, deserted his family of wife and two children to sojourn the remainder of his days in California. While his family was not left destitute by this action, it was believed by some this event in her life was responsible for a certain air of abstraction and sadness which at times characterized Bessie's generally happy mood. She was the older of her parents' two children, and when her younger brother, Percy, became deaf as the result of scarlet fever and was sent away to Chicago for special training in lip reading, etc., Bessie lived alone with her mother, whom she adored. She attended near by Cleveland Central High School and was in the same class as Archie whom she later married. She and her mother spent many happy summers together with friends at the seashore in Massachusetts and Maine; and New England always held a special attraction in her life. She attended Smith College at Northampton, Mass., graduating there with an AB degree in 1893, having specialized in science and literature. She studied at Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1894 and in Leipzig, Germany in 1895.... summer sessions in both instances. She had previously done some substitute teaching and tutoring in New York City and Brooklyn, and during the academic years of 1894-1895 taught science at Miss Sheldon's School, Providence, Rhode Island. She went to a professor Dutton's training class in Brookline (Mass.) in 1898, and was head of the science department at Miss Mittelberger's School for Girls in Cleveland, 1899-1901. In the summer of 1901 she married Archibald Heber Lewis. The ceremony took place outdoors at Annisquam, Massachusetts in a Mrs. Lane's lovely garden just below the little old white church on the hill on the left side of the old road as you travelled from Gloucester to Lanesville around Cape Ann. It was quite a social event of the season, according to the record, and attended by many of the bride's Cleveland and eastern relatives and friends. Bessie was also a great lover of the outdoors, and the occasion of their marriage symbolized both her and her husband's devotion in this respect.

Her passing many years later at the age of 58 when she had so much of life yet to live, made a deep void in the hearts of those she left behind. The memory of her outstanding qualities, however, remains to fortify us even today and for all the days to come.

Percy Williams Lewis, oldest child of Archibald Heber Lewis and Bessie Hastings Williams Lewis, was born in the home of his parents and grandparents at 887 Case Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio. After spending his earliest years in this neighborhood where some of his mother's relatives lived nearby, the family moved to Hayden Avenue in East Cleveland. While there, Percy, entered first grade in Superior School where he had to pass by the old estate of John D. Rockefeller on Euclid Avenue every day. Someone had told him old John D. looked like a sly old fox who might make away with little boys if they weren't careful. Percy noted the watchman at the estate's coach house on Euclid Ave. looked like a sly old fox, so fearing it probably was John D. himself, always gave the place a wide birth, hustling by furtively on the opposite side of the street. He also recalls at this time the day school was let out early so everyone could see John Weston, one of the first trans-continental hikers, dressed like Buffalo Bill, being escorted through Cleveland on Euclid Avenue on his way east. From Hayden Ave., the family moved into a new house in Cleveland Heights at the corner of East Overlook Road and Woodward Avenue. In 1912 the family came to LaGrange, Ill. when Percy's father was transferred to Chicago from the Cleveland office. They lived for many years at 444 South Stone Avenue, La Grange. After completing school as noted above, Percy worked for the Western Electric Company until 1928, when he entered the investment business, in the capacity of a security analyst. In 1938 his company sent him to Providence R.I. to investigate the possibilities of a merger between the American Wringer Co. of Woonsocket, R. I., and the Chamberlain Frame Co. of Waterloo, Iowa. While in Providence he met Marjorie Lillia Rich who at the time was secretary to the investment banker involved in the aforesaid merger negotiations. The merger never was consummated, but a year later, Percy married Marjorie Lillia Rich.

After a honeymoon in the Smokey Mountains of Virginia, the couple returned to Illinois and made their home in a little house Percy had had built on some acreage just south of La Grange. Here they raised their two daughters and live at this writing. Percy quit the investment business shortly after his marriage and entered the employ of the Electro-Motive Division of General Motors Corporation in 1941. He eventually became group leader of the chemical group in the Process Engineering Department where he remained until retirement in 1967 after nearly 26 years of service. Currently he works part time as technical assistant to the Bedford Park (Illinois) Air Pollution Control Board, helping to administer an air pollution abatement program in an area covering some 150 industries bordering the city of Chicago. His hobbies include music, literature, Boy Scouts, gardening, sylviculture, bird study, hiking, camping, sail-boating, stamp collecting, genealogy, tennis, antique furniture, and occasionally travelling.

Marjorie Lillia Rich Lewis was the second of three children born to Charles Abiel Rich and Maude Gertrude Evans Rich. She comes from a long line of New England ancestors who trace their origins back to Nathanael Greene of Revolutionary days. Her father was a design engineer of automatic screw machines for Brown and Sharpe, Providence, R. I., and also was active in the Methodist Church. The family lived for many years at 208 Indiana Avenue, Providence. After graduating from highschool in February, 1920, she attended the Katherine Gibbs Secretarial School in Providence until entering Pembroke College of Brown University that fall. While in college she was a member of the womens tennis team and president of the Christian Association. After finishing college in 1924 she was secretary for awhile to one of the vice presidents of the Industrial Trust Bank in Providence, then worked as a secretary in Lee Higginson's Providence office until the firm went out of business in the financial depression of 1929. She then worked awhile for a cotton broker, and finally as a secretary to one of the investment counsellors in Providence where she and Percy first met. They met again in the summer of 1938 when Marjorie and her father passed through Chicago on a conducted tour of the far west. In the fall of 1938, the first hurricane to hit New England in years flooded downtown Providence and caused much damage in the Narragansett Bay area. Percy flew east from Chicago to find Marjorie and her people all safe and sound, and arrangements for a wedding started about that time. Marjorie has always been an active outdoor person and was member of the Appalachian Mountain Club before her marriage. Golf and tennis were also her sports, and she enjoys fishing and sailing. Since marriage she devotes much time to her yard, garden and family, and has given many hours of service to the Presbyterian Church in La Grange. She is also a member of the P. E. O. sisterhood, and has held many offices in the local chapter of that organization.

(Information from personal recollections of Marjorie Lillia Rich Lewis and Percy Williams Lewis)

Marjorie Williams Lewis, oldest child of Percy Williams Lewis and Marjorie Lillia Rich Lewis, lives with her parents in La Grange, Illinois. She graduated from Lyons Township High School, La Grange, in 1959, and has worked many years in Amling's Flower Store at Carson, Pirie, Scott's department store in the Chicago loop. She loves flowers and plants, and has a small greenhouse with artifical sun-lamps in the basement where she enjoys working with discarded plants brought home from Amlings, and which challenge her "green thumb" to revive or rehabilitate them. She enjoys listening to good music and watching baseball. (PWL).

CHILDREN (order of birth) and SPOUSES (M).

1. Suzanne Williams Hougham, Born 20 June 1969, Bellevue, Washington (No. 11-1-189)

Janet Rich Lewis Hougham is the youngest of two daughters born to Percy Williams Lewis and Marjorie Lillia Rich Lewis. From the first she has always shown a willingness and competence in running her own affairs that augured well for success in handling the pleasures and problems of life. Blessed with a friendly and co-operative nature and a fine sense of humor she makes friends easily and accomplishes her aims with a minimum of frustration, while at the same time is ever thoughtful of the other person's viewpoint and needs. At college she was a member of Alpha Gamma Delta sorority and Phi Sigma Iota (Modern Languages Honorary). Following her graduation from college and subsequent marriage to Ronald Lee Hougham, who was fulfilling his military requirements in the Navy, she went to New York city with her husband where they lived 8 months during his assignment there. When Ron went with his ship from New York to San Diego, Jan journeyed across the continent to join him in the latter port. She lived there one-and-one-half years, working part of the time as a teller in one of the San Diego banks, while Ron's ship was on duty in the Pacific. In March 1967 Ron was transferred to duty in the Mediterranean and Jan returned to La Grange to live with her folks until Ron's service duties were terminated in September, 1967. The couple then moved to Ames, Iowa, where Ron pursued his studies for a master's degree at Iowa State University. During this time, another 1½ years, Janet worked as secretary to the Assistant Director of the University Agricultural Experiment Station. She had taken a short course in typing after leaving college which enabled her to pick up this kind of work. When Ron finished his work at Iowa State and got his master's degree he went to work for Boeing Aircraft in their Systems Engineering Dept. at Auburn, Washington. They moved to Bellevue, Washington, where their first child, Suzanne, was born shortly after their arrival. They recently purchased a new home at the address noted above, which is closer to Ron's work and where they hope to be permanently settled for some time. In the future, when time permits, Jan hopes to pursue her teen-age interest in horses and riding.

Ronald Lee Hougham is the oldest of three sons born to Pryor Karl Hougham and Eloise Mills Hougham. His boyhood and early schooling were experienced in Des Moines, Iowa. As a youth of 13 he worked a paper route - - a job he kept for 3 years. Later he also worked in a grocery store and at the Polk County Court House, among other places. At college he worked as a waiter and also had the benefit of a Navy ROTC scholarship, which put him through school. This brought him into the Navy to fulfill his military obligations immediately after obtaining his electrical engineering degree at Iowa State University, in 1963. He was a Naval officer for the 4 years, 1963-1967, he was in the service, ending up as a lieutenant. He served in the engineering branch of the Navy, first as a Main Propulsion Assistant and finally as Chief Engineer. This work entailed maintaining and supervising the operation of ship's engines and other propulsion equipment. His ships in the Pacific were LPDs, U.S.S. Vancouver and U.S.S. Ogden. After he left the Vancouver he was assigned to the Ogden while it was under construction in the Brookline (N.Y.) Navy Yard, and it was during this time Ron and Jan lived in New York until the ship was put in commission. In the Mediterranean he served as Chief Engineer on the U.S. S. Shadwell. While an undergraduate at Iowa State, Ron lived at his fraternity house, Phi Delta Theta, but on his return to the campus after his Navy experiences, he and Jan rented a small house on Lincoln Way near the University and were fortunate to subrent the basement living quarters to students, which helped defray expenses. It can be seen from the above that Ron is very industrious, conscientious, and thrifty. He enjoys working with and listening to stereo equipment and music....also he likes sports cars and handball. Presently he is taking flying lessons, through Boeing, with a view to obtaining a private flying license. Back at Iowa State University, while working for his master's degree he also qualified for his 2nd BS degree --engineering operations.

M. Jennifer Lee Grimes, 11 April 1969, Eugene, Oregon

Frances Kiloh Lewis, 2nd child of Archibald Heber Lewis and Bessie Hastings Williams (Lewis) was born in an apartment on Madison Avenue in Cleveland, Ohio, where her parents were living during an interim period between residences in the old family home at 887 Case Avenue of that city. Frances was named after Frances Hastings Wells (Wilkinson), a distant cousin on her mother's side of whom her parents were very fond. (See Hastings Genealogy). She enjoyed abounding good health as a child and young girl, to the envy of her brothers and the joy of her parents. Her father always took special pride in the fact that his daughter was said, at least in her early years, to resemble him quite closely. When the family moved from Cleveland to La Grange, Ill., in 1912, Frances entered 2nd grade in the old Cossitt Avenue Grammer school there, and later attended Lyons Township High School where she graduated in 1924. She entered Rockford College, Rockford, Illinois that fall, graduating four years later with an AB degree in Liberal Arts. Some time later she took secretarial training in typing and shorthand at the Moser Secretarial School in Chicago and then worked as a dentist's assistant and secretary for Dr. Lemon, La Grange's best dentist at the time, who said Frances turned out to be the best assistant he had ever had in his office. After the death of her mother in 1928, her father married an old Cleveland friend, Blanche Chipman Leggett, in 1930, and in the fall of that year and following spring, Frances accompanied her father and step-mother on a world cruise in the Cunard ship "Franconia", leaving the United States via the port of New York, and returning some six months later via the Golden Gate. The tour included visits to England, Scotland, France, Germany, Italy, India, Cambodia, China, Bali, Japan, and the Philippines.

Her marriage to Victor Orlando Bergquist has been a most happy one. Vic received his B. S. in Commerce and M. B. A. degrees from Northwestern University, Evanston, Illinois. He is a member of Delta Tau Delta fraternity and a CPA. At the time of his marriage he was working for the accounting firm of Price, Waterhouse in Chicago. Then for a year the couple lived in Akron, Ohio, where Vic taught accounting and finance at the University of Akron. After a year of teaching they came back to Chicago where Vic worked in the accounting offices of Montgomery Ward & Co. He was with Ward's for 12 years, during which time he was controller for the company's paint manufacturing plant in Chicago Heights and later for their manufacturing plant in Springfield, Illinois. In 1945 he left Ward's and went with Ideal Industries as controller in Sycamore, Illinois where the family enjoyed living in this friendly town in the heart of the Illinois corn country for 7 years. In 1952, however, Vic decided to settle in California, where for a few years he was employed as treasurer by Capitol Records in Los Angeles. In 1957 he went with the Plastic and Rubber Products Company, manufacturers of rubber O-rings and seals, where he served as Treasurer and and Financial Vice President until his retirement in 1968. At this time Fran and Vic sold their home in Van Nuys, where they had been living since coming to California, and moved to their present home on the shore of Mission Bay in San Diego. With their three children through school and married, Fran and Vic are now free to enjoy their retirement playing golf, swimming, visiting their many friends and relatives, and travelling around the country. Vic is also active in the affairs of the Christian Science Church of which he is a member.

After moving to California with his family in 1952, Dick completed his schooling in the far west, up to the point of obtaining a master's degree in the general field of psychology and psychiatry at the University of Oregon, Eugene, Oregon. After graduating from Occidental in 1960, he worked awhile for the Union Oil Company of California, and then decided to travel around the world before settling down at a life's occupation. On his return from world travels, he decided to work for his master's degree as noted above. At the completion of this program he married Eileen Lightholder, and the couple moved east in 1966. Dick did counselling work for awhile in the Philadelphia area then decided to move to the vicinity of Boston, Massachusetts and work for his doctorate at Boston University while counselling teenagers at Boston General Hospital, where he is located at the present writing. Gilbert Hastings Lewis, 3rd child and youngest son of Archibald Heber Lewis and Bessie Hastings Williams Lewis, was born at 887 Case Avenue, now 2205 East 40th St., Cleveland, Ohio. This was the old home of his mother's parents. Gilbert was named after his uncle, Gilbert DeLancy Lewis on his father's side, and after the Hastings family on his mother's side. He and his family lived in several different places in the Cleveland area, including their new home on Cleveland Heights at the corner of East Overlook Road and Woodward Avenue, before moving to La Grange, Illinois in 1912, where Gilbert attended the public schools- graduating from Lyons Township High School in 1925. He entered Purdue University, West Lafayette, Indiana, that fall, and graduated in 1929 with a BS degree in mechanical engineering. While at Purdue he joined the Delta Upsilon fraternity and was elected to membership in Tau Beta Pi, an honorary engineering fraternity promoting good scholarship in that field. He also joined the R.O.T. C. while in college. On leaving Purdue he worked for a few years in the engineering department of the G. & W. Electric Specialty Company in Chicago, manufacturers of heavy duty electric service power line equipment. During the depression of 1929-1934 he left the company to take charge of the U. S. Army's administrative responsibility to manage various camps in the upper and lower peninsulas of Michigan where the United States Civilian Conservation Corps was carrying out reforestation operations. Shortly before his entry into this service, Gilbert had married Margaret Irene Hevenor in 1931. He returned to G.& W. for a short while at the termination of his service in connection with the C. C. C. but during this period kept up his contacts with the Army and reserves; so that when the United States entered the war, Gilbert joined the Field Artillery and during his period of preparation for over seas duty was transferred to various camps around the nation, including California and the Northwest. With his wife and growing family of children, therefore, they led an interesting, if somewhat nomadic, life in more or less temporary quarters in the areas where they were stationed. He left his family in Arcadia, California, when he went overseas in 1944 to serve in the 14th field artillery observation battalion as commanding officer under General Patton, and where he saw active duty in Patton's movement across France. At the end of the war he left the service as a Lieutenant Colonel and rejoined his family in La Grange, Illinois. They lived at 207 South Edgewood Avenue, La Grange, for many years. Gilbert also returned to the G. & W. Electric Specialty Company in 1945 as manufacturing engineer, serving in this capacity until his retirement in 1968.

His first wife, Margaret, died in 1957 after a rather long illness, and in 1958 he married an old friend of the family, Marion Ruth Beckley (Mulligan) who was divorced from her first husband. Both of Gilbert's marriages have been successful and happy, and with his second wife, Marion, acquired some frontage property on Lac LaBelle near Oconomowoc, Wisconsin. In 1961 they built a most attractive year-round home there in preparation for retirement, where they now live. Their property affords ample opportunity for Gilbert to pursue his favorite hobby of sail-boating, and Marion, hers of gardening. Gilbert also is occupied as a voluntary layman assistant in his church, and Marion as a voluntary nurses aide in the local hospital. Their travels since retirement include the West Indies, Alaska, Florida, and the Hawaiian Islands.

Margaret Irene Hevenor (Lewis) was the 3rd of four daughters born to Winfield Scott Hevenor and Lillian Fredrica Reineck Hevenor. She attended Lyons Township High School, La Grange, Illinois, where she and Gilbert became sweethearts. Following her graduation from high school in 1927, she entered Wooster College, Wooster, Ohio, and graduated from there with an AB degree in liberal arts in 1931. She was very active in community and church affairs after her marriage, and enjoyed the sociability of her many friends in all parts of the country wherever her home was at the time. The loss to these and her community and family in La Grange was keenly felt by her death at the age of 47, in 1957.

Marion Ruth Beckley (Lewis), third child of Gordon Daniel Beckley and Lotta Ann Sherk Beckley, attended the public schools of La Grange, Illinois and graduated from Lyons Township High School, La Grange, in 1926. She attended Milwaukee Downers College, for women, Milwaukee, Wisconsin, 1926-1928, and the University of Arizona, Tucson, Ariz., in 1929. In 1936 she married William Cooke Mulligan of La Grange by whom she had 3 children: James, Sally and John,- all of whom are married and have children of their own. Marion's father and his brother, Welcome Lewis Beckley, owned the Beckley, Ralston Co. of Chicago, wholesalers of automobile equipment and accessories until the early 1930's. The two lovely twin homes in La Grange owned by these brothers eventually were sold to the Congregational Church. The church has developed the premises as an excellent old people's home known as Plymouth Place. After her separation from her first husband in 1947, Marion lived alone with her children until she and Gilbert were married in the First Presbyterian Church of La Grange in 1958. She and Gilbert are very fond of the out-door life and are enjoying their retirement on Lac LaBelle and in the surrounding Wisconsin countryside.

CHILDREN (order of birth) and SPOUSES (M)
1. Gregory Hastings Lewis, Born 22 May 1966, La Grange, Illinois (No.11-1-178)

Gilbert Hastings Lewis, II., (Bert), oldest child of Gilbert Hastings Lewis I, and Margaret Irene Hevenor Lewis, attended the public schools in the various localities where his family lived prior to finally settling in LaGrange, Illinois, at the end of World War II. He graduated from Lyons Township High School, LaGrange, in 1950 and entered Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, where he stayed two years until drafted by the Army. At the conclusion of two years army service he entered Illinois Institute of Technology, Chicago, Illinois, and graduated from there in 1957 with a BA degree in Civil Engineering. He then went to work for the Metropolitan Lumber Company of Chicago as a salesman in their Wisconsin territory. In 1956 he married Mary Helene Luce in the first Congegational Church of LaGrange, Illinois. They remodelled a home they had purchased on Lake Okauchee, Wisconsin, where they lived during the time Bert was selling lumber for Metropolitan. In 1966 he with a friend decided to go into partnership and start a retail lumber business in the Aspen, Colorado, area. So Bert left Metropolitan, where he had enjoyed considerable success, and the two men moved their families to Colorado near Aspen. They purchased some acreage on the road between Aspen and Basalt, built a store and lumber yard, and were in business by the summer of 1966. In 1968 they sold out to other interests. Bert continued to run the operation awhile for the new owners, but in 1969 severed connection with the enterprise completely. He is now engaged in the construction and contracting business in the area. He has an enthusiastic sales and promotional nature, enjoys active outdoor living, such as hunting, boating, horse-back riding, and skiing. His wife, Mary, participates in some of these activities, especially skiing. She also loves to play the piano, and as noted above, has had training as a registered nurse.

1. Kevin Mathews Ireland, Born 22 August 1961, Boston, Massachusetts (No. 11-1-159)

2. Eric William Ireland, Born 5 October 1963, Boston, Massachusetts (No. 11-2-168)

3. Todd Winfield Ireland, Born 5 October 1963, Boston, Massachusetts (No. 11-3-169)

Carolyn Frances Lewis, fourth and youngest child of Gilbert Hastings Lewis, I., and Margaret Irene Hevenor Lewis, was a brilliant student, graduating 10th in her class, with honors, from Lyons Township High School, La Grange, Illinois, in 1956. She attended Wooster College in Wooster, Ohio, majoring in religion, and graduating with a BA degree in 1960. She had also previously studied flute and had attended the Stephen Foster Music Camp in Kentucky one summer in her high school days. She had always been active in church youth work and inherited a deep interest in religion from her ancestors. This, together with her husband, Gary Ireland's, interest who had studied for the ministry, directed her energies to social welfare work in the inner city. In Boston she and her husband, while he was studying at Harvard, managed a half-way home for rehabilitating mental patients. Later, they moved to Detroit where Gary took an assistant pastorship at his own request in a Presbyterian church in a Negro neighborhood where the membership was largely Negro. They were happy here for four years until in 1968 Gary took an interest in the "Hippy" movement with a view of helping them solve their problems. His interest grew to an involvement in the movement and other radical political groups which resulted in greater sacrifices to his family, and ultimately separation and finally divorce. Carolyn then completed her work for a teacher's certificate at Wayne University, Detroit, in the winter and summer of 1968 which enabled her to take a grade school teaching position in one of the suburbs of Detroit in the fall of 1968. She and her 3 sons enjoy camping trips in the many available areas of Michigan and elsewhere. She is also an expert at handling sailboats, and enjoys playing flute in musical groups.
